COVINGTON'S CAVE.

A NUMBER DISCOVERED
THROUGHOUT THE CITY BY THE POLICE.

Juvenile Dime Novel Readers. Imitate the Mythical Doings of Heroes of Trashy Literature.

A light blue smoke curling up as though from the bowels of the earth in a vacant lot at Robbins and Scott, sts., in Covington, attracted the attention of Policeman Billy McGraw a day or two ago.

Billy's hair stood on end, and his face became pallid with fear, as pictures of earthquakes, volcanoes and eruptions flitted before his mind. He then braced himself and closely scrutinized the bottom of a suspicious looking black bottle. With his nerves quivered the dandy copper walked hesitatingly toward the smoke. Drawing close, a muffled conversation reached Billy's ear, listening closer he heard a voice in subdued tones saying: "Yes you make it a jack pot, and we'll divvy the swag that way." "Oh," said Billy, to himself, "I've got into a gang of robbers, and this is a cave, sure enough. There's the entrance, covered up with that brushwood there." Throwing it aside, he peered down into the hole and saw something that made his heart beat 60 jumps to the second. Five happy, well-dressed youngsters, each with an old clay pipe in his mouth, sat around a rudely constructed table. Several cards lay on the board, and in each pair of hands five cards were held. Gazing into a dark corner the astonished blue coat discovered an old style cannon stove in which a roaring fire was burning. The stove door was open, and the light from the fire made the scene a weird one. Potatoes were strewn about the floor, and a number were roasting in the fire. On the walls were pasted old pictures cut from the Police Gazette and News. On a shelf dug in the side of the cave was a stack of half-dime novels. The cave was about 6 feet deep and 8 feet square. It had been dug down into the ground, and the hole covered with boards. After sizing everything up carefully, the officer yelled, "See here you fellows, what are you doing down there?" In a moment every card disappeared, the stove door was shut and everything was darkness. "Stand ready, boys," commanded a boyish voice, in a hissing tone. "Well, answer my question!" commanded the policeman.

"Who are you and what do you want?" again spoke the one who seemed to be in command.

"I'm an officer, and I want you fellows to come out of this place."

A hurried consultation was held in whispers. A bustle was heard and the commander answered in a pit-cous tone:

"Oh, Mr. Policeman, don't arrest us, we aren't doing anything. We are only playing."

"Playing what?"

"Playing scouts and Indians and heroes, like our books says."

"Ah, dime novel heroes, eh? Well, come out." Out came five young striplings, no one over 11 years of age, with dirty faces and tearful eyes, and stood in a row in front of the officer.

Good-natured Billy read them a lecture on dime novels, and then extorting a promise from the boys that they would never build another cave he let them go. There are two or three other caves in the suburbs. The amount of labor for the little fellows to build one of these places is enormous.

Jake, the city dog barker, is kept busy destroying these places, and the officers have been notified to arrest all such youths who are caught in the future making caves. The little fellows will steal potatoes, eggs and even chickens, which they half cook and eat with a relish, and pronounce the victuals "bully."

The Mosquito's Machinery.

A writer in the London Sportsman thus describes a mosquito as seen under a microscope; it appears that in the "bill" of the little beast alone there are no fewer than 5 distinct surgical instruments. These are described as a lance, two neat saws, a suction pump, and a small Corliss engine. It appears that when a "skeeter" settles down to his work upon a nice tender portion of the human frame, the lance is first pushed into the flesh then the two saws, placed back to back, begin to work up and down to enlarge the hole, then the pump is inserted, and the victim's blood is siphoned up to the reservoir carried behind and finally, to complete orlicity of the performances, the wretch drops a quantity of poison into the wound to keep it irritated. The diminutive fiend takes a fly around just to digest your gore, and makes tracks for a fresh victim, or if the first has been of unusual good quality he returns to the same happy hunting ground. The mosquito's marvelous energy, combined with his portable operating chest, makes him at once a terror and a pest.—Ex.

A FAMOUS GUERRILLA.

Some Newly-Developed Facts in the Wild Life of Quantrell.

[Cumberland (Md.) Letter to the Philadelphia Times.]

In talking with an old citizen of Cumberland he assured me that Quantrell, the notorious guerrilla chieftain of Missouri, at one time lived in this town. Quantrell, for over a year before the close of the war, was repudiated by the Confederate Government. He then raised the black flag and he took no prisoners. He perpetrated the most heinous act in the history of the war—the massacre at Lawrence, Kas. On this occasion he took the town by surprise and actually murdered every man in the city that could be found. I think the number was 180. When a Southern lady upbraided him with this act he coolly said "he wanted to kill Jim Lane, who lived there, and as he hadn't the honor of his acquaintance and no time to make new acquaintances, he killed all the men he could catch." He pursued General Blunt and bodyguard across the prairies for over fifty miles and killed 92 out of 103 men at that time. At Sedalia he captured a train loaded with wounded soldiers and ordered them all to be shot, which was done, the late Jesse James taking an active interest in the horrible affair, killing it is said, with his own hands eighteen men. I met a man some years ago in Ohio who told me privately he belonged to Quantrell's gang. He said he was a finely-bred, handsome man, with a pleasant, soft voice. He was, "in truth, as soft a mannered man as ever cut throat or settled a ship."

I have traced this man's history carefully. As to the place of his birth it is uncertain. When very young he came to Washington county, Maryland, and there married a lady of beauty and excellent family. At this time he read and studied much, taking a deep interest in literature, especially poetry and novels. After living happily over a year with his wife, becoming embarrassed, he took the benefit of the bankrupt act, was arrested on charge of fraudulent insolvency, and placed in jail. His devoted wife shared his confinement during the six months in which he remained in jail awaiting trial. Upon that trial he was acquitted.

But after this there began to appear on the surface some of the tigerish element which lurked in his system. He went to St. Louis, was arrested there; his wife, still loving and cleaving to him, effected a compromise by which he was released. Then he went to Cincinnati, but got into trouble, and taking his wife with him he repaired to New Orleans. Here, for the first time, it appears, he began to abuse his faithful wife. He became desperate, too, and shamefully neglected her. Her illness called him back apparently to old-time kindness and tenderness; he abandoned the use of liquor and started to take her back to her home in Maryland.

She revived in spirit, and with renewed happiness was looking for the return to the home of her childhood. But while on the Mississippi river on their way home he committed a forgery on a Cincinnati bank. He was again put in jail—this time in Cincinnati. After seven anxious months his devoted wife secured his release on bail, which he forfeited. He then deserted her and she returned home, but she soon heard of him near Hagerstown, Md., where he managed to commit another forgery, but escaped conviction. Not long after he was convicted of forgery in Pennsylvania, at the earnest solicitation of her relatives and friends, procured a divorce.

When Quantrell heard this he made furious threats against her. Upon his release from prison he quickly married a Philadelphia woman, but in a few weeks was arrested for forgery and was sentenced for some years.

Mrs. Quantrell then married Mr. A. Covlin. She was still young, for Quantrell had managed to commit all these crimes in less than twelve years, and she married when she was only eighteen. She took up her residence with her second husband in Cumberland, in 1878, and they were both highly esteemed. The 5th day of March, 1879, she was sitting alone in her sitting-room in the hotel, of which her husband was proprietor, just as the evening train came in. A servant soon after showed a pleasant-looking gentleman up to her room, who had just arrived on the train. As soon as with a smile he dismissed the servant he entered the room and immediately locked the door, and to her horror and despair Mrs. Covlin saw that it was her first husband, Quantrell. She immediately screamed as loud as she could for help, for there was murder in his eye and he told her her hour had come. He caught her by the throat, threw her down on the floor, placed his knee on her breast, and attempted to shoot her; providentially the pistol missed fire. Just as he was in the act of drawing a murderous knife several stalwart gentlemen broke through the door, having heard her screams, and rushed in. They caught him and bound him, before he could further harm the beautiful woman who had been in the days gone by as an angel of mercy to him.

He was convicted and sentenced at the next term of the court. His manners and appearance were so pleasant that he captured the hearts of his jailers, and was permitted more favors than any other prisoner; in fact, acting a sort of assistant jailer. He was pardoned in 1881 by the Governor on condition that he would leave the State and never return. The man I met at Middletown, O., who belonged to Quantrell's command, said that Quantrell told him he had been married six times, and "always to pretty women of good families," and he laughingly added, "I believe they are all living now." This was in 1864. He said also, that Quantrell asked him to guess his age, for he was still a young looking man, not looking over thirty-five at the most, and he said: "I never tell my age; but you have not come within ten years of it."

Even during the time he was committing some horrible atrocities, in his moments of leisure he would enjoy the reading of books and magazines, and was accustomed to borrow such things from houses near where he camped, if he dared let his presence be known. Cool and polished as any gentleman in the land, he was cruel, crafty and determined, so that, though he commanded the most desperate, dissolute set of outlaws ever collected together, they obeyed his slightest commands with promptitude. His only punishment was sudden death.

"Why," said this man who had belonged to his gang when I spoke of what a dangerous man Jesse James must have been, "why, Jesse James was nothing to him; he would have been a king-bee among a thousand men braver than Jesse James."

There have been some doubts as to when or where Quantrell was killed, or even that he is dead, but my informant, who had the means of knowing, says he was killed undoubtedly in Kentucky in 1885. I have the names by which he passed at several times during his career, but for obvious reason do not care to publish them. One, however, has already been published, which he long assumed—Dr. Hays.

The "Society Column."

Louisville Commercial.

It was only eight or ten years ago that what is called the "society column" of American newspapers was established. It was intended to chronicle the coming and going of persons well known in society, whose movements were of interest to many others, who, like themselves, possessed leisure, wealth and cultivation enough to make the pursuit of social pleasures part of the occupation of life. It became in due time a very popular department of the newspaper. It is not only that people like to see their names pleasantly in print, but there is a decided value in the society column just as there is in the market reports. As the merchant finds in the latter all the fluctuations in prices of the goods he sells, so the reader in society finds in the former all the changes in the social circle, the new-comers to reside, the visitors, the absentees and what they are all doing. Those persons who affect not to like what they are pleased to term "newspaper notoriety" are mere hypocrites.

There is no "notoriety" in a pleasant paragraph mention, and if the column is edited with discrimination and taste it is like the social chat one hears at the clubs or in the drawing-rooms. Of course, there are times when awkward things creep in, just as people say awkward things in society, and occasionally shoddy and pretentious people succeed in using it to advertise themselves into an apparent prominence which they do not possess. These things are the imperfections that exist in everything and can only be eliminated by the slow development and elevation of the department.

Arsenic Pills by the Pint.

J. A. Small, a Gainesville, Ga., merchant, says: "For years I was a victim to the combined effects of Erysipelas and an aggravated type of Eczema, that baffled all medical skill. I consulted the very best physicians in the United States to no good purpose. I gave every patent medicine that was recommended a faithful trial and received no benefit. I took large quantities of potash and a pint can full of arsenic pills. The patent medicine, pills, and potash mixtures fed instead of curing the disease. They destroyed my appetite and wrecked my system—I lost flesh and energy—I lost three years from my business and spent $2,000 in a fruitless effort to gain my health. At last, when I began to consider my case hopeless, I commenced taking S. S. S., and in a short time, I was entirely cured. I waited a year after a cure was effected, and continued to take Swift's Speedie oil and on as a sort of safeguard, before I was willing to make public this marvelous cure. Being assured beyond the possibility of a doubt that the cure was permanent, I wrote the history of my case for the benefit of my fellow-men.

My skin is now as smooth as it was when a boy. I weigh more than I ever did in my life, and my general health was never better. I passed through last winter (which was an unusually cold one), without losing a single day from my business. For the last twelve months I have had no return or the erysipelas in any shape or form, or any touch of eczema."

CLEVELAND, HENDRICKS AND REFORM!

Light At Last!

AND THE DEMOCRATIC CHICKEN CAN CROW FOR VICTORY!

After 24 Years of Watching and Waiting

The Democrats Have Achieved a Triumph.

Cleveland and Hendricks Elected and There

Will Once More be an Honest Administration of the Government.

New York, Indiana, New Jersey, Connecticut,

Michigan, California and the Solid South Array Themselves on the Side of Reform.

Good-bye Plumed Knight, Farewell Black Jack.

"See that my grave is kept green." J. G. B.

The Very Latest.

(Special to South Kentuckian.)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 6, 7:15 p. m.—Cleveland and Hendricks have carried Indiana by 5,000, and New York by 3,000, but National Republican Committee has issued an address claiming solid North and several southern states. Dan'l Manning out in address saying New York cannot be wrested or stolen from the Democrats. Gorman telegraphs me this minute, "New York conceded by Republicans," you can bet on Cleveland.

E. G. LOGAN.

The election Tuesday resulted in the triumphant election of Cleveland and Hendricks. They received the vote of every Southern State. West Virginia gave a Democratic majority of nearly 5,000, but Goff, Rep., was elected to Congress in the First District. Florida, Virginia and North Carolina, which were claimed by the Republicans, gave Democratic majorities of from 4,000 to 10,000. In addition to the South with 153 electoral votes, are New Jersey with 9, Connecticut 6 and Michigan 6. (In Michigan the fusion ticket has 6 Green-backers, 6 Democrats and 1 odd man on each, which will insure the election of 1 Blaine elector and 12 fusion electors.) Indiana has gone Democratic, though it was in doubt at first. The entire ticket. Presidential and State is elected and the Legislature is Democratic by a good majority which will elect a Senator to succeed Voorhees. New York is exceedingly close but has gone Democratic by a majority of from 1,000 to 4,000. This gives Cleveland many more votes than the necessary 201 and with a fair count his election is assured. The Republicans in their desperation will not hesitate to take any advantage to secure the vote of New York State. It will probably be several days before the official count is made.

California, Oregon, Nevada, Illinois and Wisconsin are doubtful, and claimed by both sides, and the Democrats are confident of at least two of those States.

The State Election.

The probabilities are that the Democrats have elected all of their candidates for Congress in Kentucky. In the First District Stone has been turned by an overwhelming majority. Turner's majority in Ballard was only 150 and Stone's friends are claiming his election by 2000 majority. The old outlaw is undoubtedly snored under.

In the Second District Laffoon's majority over Moore is very large. Every county except Christian gives Laffoon a big majority and Moore's majority is less than 800 in this county.

In the Third District Hallsell has defeated Golladay by an increased majority over the vote of 1892.

In the Fourth District Robertson had a walkover and his majority will run up into thousands.

In the Fifth District the majority for Willis over Wilson is 3,600, a falling off from the last vote.

In the Sixth District had no difficulty in beating his Republican opponent, Landrum, by several thousand.

In the Seventh Breckenridge had no opposition and the certainty of his election made Democrats careless and his vote is not as large as usual.

In the Eighth District McCreary's majority over Sebastian will not be less than 2000. A very large vote was polled and heavy Democratic gains were made.

In the Ninth District the vote between Powers and Wadsworth was very close but the Democrats claim the election of Powers by 150 majority. A Democratic gain of 500 was made in Boyd county. The Republicans do not concede Powers' election.

In the Tenth, Jno. D. White's District, Taulbee defeats his Republican opponent, Auxier, by 1,000 majority. In Montgomery county his majority is 333, a change of 1233 over the late vote for Superior Court Judge. Clark gives Taulbee 325 majority, a heavy gain. At Blueball precinct, in Clark county, the negroes attacked and seriously wounded Jailer James Eaton. The whites returned the fire and severely wounded three negroes who led the attack.

The Eleventh, Wolford's District returns him by a decided majority over Jones, Republican.

It makes the Kentucky delegation stand as follows:

First District—W. J. Stone.
Second District—Polk Laffoon.
Third District—J. E. Hallsell.
Fourth District—Thos. Robertson.
Fifth District—A. S. Willis.
Sixth District—John G. Carlisle.
Seventh District—W. C. P. Breckenridge.
Eighth District—James B. McCreary.

Ninth District—Frank Powers.
Tenth District—W. P. Taulbee.

Eleventh District—Frank Wolford.
It is solidly Democratic for the first time in many years. The present representation is composed of eight Democrats, two Republicans and Oscar Turner. There is more rejoicing over the redemption of the First District than either of the Republican strongholds in the mountains. Kentucky has done her duty from the Mississippi to the Big Sandy.

Private Dispatches.

New York, 2:43 p. m., Nov. 6.—Latest advices give Cleveland New York State, and he is elected President of the United States.
JNO. C. LATHAM, JR.

LOUISVILLE, 2:45 p. m., Nov. 6.—Associated Press connects the New York election to Cleveland by 3,000 majority. The city is wild with excitement.

LOUIS SEELBACH.

NEW YORK.
New York, Nov. 5.—1935 election districts in New York State, outside of the cities of New York and Brooklyn, give Blaine 366,847, Cleveland 311,379, Butler 9,517, St. John 18,903.
Brooklyn, N. Y.: Corrected figures make Cleveland's majority in Kings county 15,576, instead of 15,152.
Albany, N. Y.: Reconsolidation county complete gives Blaine 340 plurality, a Democratic gain of 300 over 1880.

New York, 9 p. m.: Returns are coming in very slowly. New York and Indiana are so close that the result can only be reached by official count. The Democrats claim New York State by 4,710 plurality. These figures are estimated from private telegrams received from districts not heard from.

New York, 10 p. m.: The Times, bulletin says 1,981 districts in this State, outside of New York city and Brooklyn, show a Democratic gain which will give the State to Cleveland by 5,000 plurality. The returns are from remote points, which makes them slow.

One thousand seven hundred and forty-two districts outside of New York City and Brooklyn give Blaine 339,401; Cleveland, 332,109; Butler 10,560; St. John 20,029, a net Democratic gain of 13,924. The 254 districts yet to hear from gave Garfield 4,243 plurality. A late correction gave Cleveland a plurality in New York City of 43,233.

New York: The Sun has received the returns from every county in the state and revised the returns complete from fifty-four of the sixty counties. They give Cleveland 1,643 plurality.

New York: The returns from 40 election districts of this city show Cleveland 43,233 votes over Blaine.
The city and county ticket of the county democracy, headed by ex-Mayor Wm. R. Grace for Mayor, are elected excepting coroner, by majorities ranging from 7,000 to 15,000. Deputy coroner, M. J. B. Messenger, Tammany hall elected the coroner by 10,000 majority.

The Next Congress.

Enough is known to show that the next Congress will be largely Democratic. The Republicans have made some gains but not enough to overcome the present majority of 70 in the House.

Indiana elects 11 Democrats a gain of 4. In Louisiana Kellogg is defeated by Gay, Dem, and all the Democratic candidates but one are elected. In Tennessee the Democrats elect 7 and the Republicans 3 Congressmen and the entire Democratic State ticket is elected by a reduced majority.

It is impossible to give all the gains and losses, but the Democratic majority in the next house will not fall below 30.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE, GENTLEMEN!

Of a Stem-winding Waterbury Watch and Chain, a Peep o'Day Alarm Clock, or a load of Best Lump Coal. This you can do by buying from us for cash, $12 worth of goods in either our Men's Department, Boys' Department or Furnishing Department, and the prices we name we guarantee to be as low as same class of goods can be bought for anywhere in the Southwest on day of sale.

EXPLANATORY:

By the failures of Carhart, Whitford & Co., and Handcock Bros. & Co., New York City, about $3,000,000 worth of Men's and Boys' Clothing was thrown on the market. Most retail clothing had carried over so much clothing from the winter of 1883, that few were in a position to take advantage of these great breaks. This consequently forced these goods to be sold for almost a song. Our house being the only one in Louisville that had completely sold out its last winter's stock, was the only one in this city that could profit by these failures, and with money in hand, on New York City bought recklessly in quantity. The prices at which clothing was offered him were so low that he bought more than we could conveniently handle, especially as the weather during September was so very warm, and heavy-weight goods did not move rapidly. Now we have got these goods and they must be sold. To move them quick we offer the above inducements. Buying these goods as low as we did, we can well afford to give these presents and still undersell our competitors. But remember, these presents only go with Blaine's friends have compared him to Henry Clay. Let's see how they resemble. Clay was ambitious to be President and was three times a candidate, but never elected. He was a "magnetic" man but his magnetism availed him nothing. Blaine was twice beaten by his party in convention and now he has been defeated by his political opponent. Clay was beaten by Polk, a new and unknown man. The campaign was the hottest ever known up to that time. Blaine has been defeated by Cleveland, a young reform Governor of New York. In 1884 New York was very close and doubtful, but finally decided in favor of Polk. In 1884 New York was again the pivotal State and after being claimed by both sides for two days, was found to be against the Modern Clay by a small majority. It has been just 40 years. History repeats itself.

Happy Cal Wagner.

To-night the most renowned of all negro comedians, Happy Cal Wagner, will appear at the Opera House. Happy Cal has more personal friends in Hopkinsville than any other member of his profession, and these who have been fortunate enough to have witnessed his performances are aware of the remarkable genius possessed by this enterprising negro character. His company is composed of artists whose reputation is due to places by the side of their illustrious leader. The illustrious comedian and stump orator, Leo Benedict, stands prominently on the bill as a coal-junker of Happy Cal. Sam Rice, another Southern favorite, will meet with a hearty welcome from his old friends. Matt and Lew Diamond, Shannon and Laughlin, Geo. W. Collins, Herbert Blake, Castell Brydges, J. D. Green, Charlie Schilling, the famous minstrel wonder. The Quaker City Quartette, an organization of the best vocalists of Philadelphia. Will W. Barbour, H. Compton and Richmond Smith form a combination of talent that cannot be equaled by any other company. Happy Cal Wagner's "thousand dollar smile" will double in price when he views the magnificent audience assembled to-night.

MARRIED.

REECE-CARROLL: At the bride's home near Fairview, Wednesday evening, Nov. 5, 1884, by Rev. B. P. Orr, of the Methodist church, Mr. Marion Reece to Miss Eliza Carroll. May they always be happy in each other's love.

AVANT-RIVES: In Bethel Church, this county, Thursday, Nov. 6, 1884, by Rev. Mr. Craig, of the Methodist church, Mr. Geo. W. Avant, of Longview, to Miss Kittie Rives. Mr. Avant is a gentleman of correct habits, fine business qualities and universal popularity. His bride is a very attractive lady and one who will make him a true wife and companion. May their bark glide smoothly over the stream of life and anchor safe at last in the haven of prosperity be our earnest wish.

GARNETT-HOOSER: At Pembroke, Ky., Thursday Nov. 6, 1884, Mr. Ben. J. Garnett to Miss Addie L. Hooser, both of Pembroke. Mr. Garnett is a prominent and popular young merchant of Pembroke and is a gentleman of the highest character. His lovely bride is one of the belles of the county and possesses not only unusual beauty but winning manners and personal attractions of the highest order. May their lives be one uninterrupted season of sunshine and happiness.

TALLAFERRO-WARFIELD: Mr. Sam W. Tallafarro, of Guthrie, Ky., and Miss Maud Warfield were married Wednesday, Nov. 5, 1884, at the residence of the bride's father, Esq. W. E. Warfield, near Casky, this county, Bishop Dudley, of the Episcopal church, officiating. Mr. Tallafarro is an extensive planter of Todd county and a young gentleman of the character and well-deserved popularity. The bride is a young lady possessing many lovable and endearing traits and Mr. Tallafarro is to be congratulated upon his good fortune in securing so worthy a helpmeet. After the wedding, which was very quiet, Mr. and Mrs. Tallafarro departed on the noon train for their home near Guthrie. Our best wishes and heartiest congratulations are tendered them.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS is an unfailing specific for all complaints arising from a derangement of the functions of the Liver. It purifies the blood and infuses new life into the invalid. Pains in the side, general uneasiness, loss of appetite, headache, bilious attacks, &c., &c., are sure indications that a corrective is needed. PRICKLY ASH BITTERS is especially adapted for these complaints. It arouses a torpid liver to action and restores it to a healthy condition.

Several thousand dollars will change hands in this city on the result of the election.

HERE AND THERE.

Howe's time is the city standard.

He on hand to-night to see Cal Wagner's Minstrels.

FOR SALE—A good two-wheel road cart at a bargain. Call on C. W. Ducker.

There will be a dance given by the young gentlemen of the city at the Rink next Tuesday night.

The latest telegrams from the election will be read from the stage at the Opera House to-night.

Mr. F. B. Wooldridge brought in a hogshead of new tobacco to Tucker & Wooldridge this week, the first they have received this season.

Election day passed off very quietly in this city Tuesday, although considerable interest was manifested and a big vote was polled.

The two voting precincts in the city were crowded nearly all day. The city ought by all means to have three voting places.

The Band of harvesters will give an oyster supper in Howe's Hall to-night. A pleasant time and a good supper is in store for all who attend.

For beds, bedding, bureaus, wardrobes, tables, carpets &c., at low prices call on Jno. W. Payne.

Gish & Garner received yesterday from a prominent firm in San Francisco an order for a shipment of their wild Goose Lignum. Merit will tell.

Burglars entered several houses Wednesday night. They got $28 from Judge Winfree and $2 and a gold collar button worth several dollars from Judge McCarroll.

The new church at Fairview, Ky., was dedicated on the first Sunday, by Dr. H. C. Morrison. Enough money was raised by subscription to pay off the indebtedness of the church and the Methodists of Fairview and vicinity now have a handsomely furnished church, all paid for. They are to be congratulated.

The Board of Trade elected three tobacco inspectors Wednesday night for the ensuing two years. Messrs. D. F. Smithson, M. H. Nelson and P. G. Jones were the lucky aspirants. After the election the Board repaired to Hall's restaurant and partook of a banquet of oysters, etc.

A reporter of the Kentuckian asked a colored voter Monday if he knew why he voted for Blaine. He replied in the affirmative, and said: "You see 'boss' we've been keepin' house so long we hates to break up." The colored gentlemen will doubtless regret to hear that the party will have to move.

Many of the negroes are ignorant and foolish enough to believe that in the event of the accession of Cleveland to the Presidency they would be returned to slavery. The poor, deluded creatures will probably learn some day that the Republicans have duped them in more respects than one.

The first news received in the city Tuesday night indicated the election of Cleveland, and the Democrats went wild with joy. Wednesday the bulletins showed Republican gains in New York State and by a system of estimating so many votes to the precincts unsupported a majority of 11,000 was figured out for Blaine. This was the signal for the Republicans to go wild and the Democrats were correspondingly depressed. All day the news kept getting worse and worse and Democrats gave it up in despair. Yesterday morning the tide again changed. The associated bulletin brought the news that the New York papers conceded the state to Cleveland by from 1,000 to 4,000 majority and private telegrams soon poured in confirming the good news. When there was no longer any doubt of victory the Democrats were then about as happy as people ever get this side of Paradise.

BELLEVIEW, KY.

ED. SOUTH KENTUCKIAN: I promised many friends in this county and friends in Missouri and Kansas, to give a synopsis of my trip through the above States. There among them can find much to admire and praise. I have frequently heard of the far famed West, with all its beauty, glory and grandeur. No one can describe, no one can portray it, however wise and stout he may be. It must be seen to be appreciated. There you will find one grand panorama spread out before you as far as the eye can see with no obstruction and as you stand and contemplate its extent and take one general view of your surroundings, how it thrills your heart and cheers your mind with deeds of valor, glory and grandeur, you can but reflect back to old times, think of the struggles, hardships and privations our forefathers have endured that we may now possess even without molestation all this grand country; but to business.

On the 16th of the present month in company with J. J. Smith and Wm. Burt I left Hopkinsville bound for St. Louis, arrived at 6 next morning ate a good breakfast and then boarded our train bound for Ft. Scott, Kansas. Our line was the Missouri and Pacific. This road runs with the Missouri river until you get to Jeffersonville. On it you find much good and rich land, well cultivated mostly in corn and certainly very productive. The river muddy, turbid, whirling and devious in its course. Our first stop was at Sedalia, a beautiful place of several thousand inhabitants, spent 2 hours looking round waiting for the other train. At 6 o'clock left for Ft. Scott, arrived there at 11 p. m., spent the night and most of the next morning in the place, found many Kentuckians there who were very kind, many offering to take us over any parts of Kansas without any expense to us, many offers of a like character we accepted and were highly appreciated by us. In Ft. Scott we made the acquaintance of a young man from about Bowling Green by the name of Armstrong who is a real estate agent. From him we gathered much information in regard to Kansas which proved of much advantage. I cannot give minute details or I would make this letter too long. My honest opinion is from all I saw and Mr. Smith and Mr. Burt concurred within me that the best parts of Kansas and Missouri are the border counties on the Missouri and Kansas line. Bourbon, Bates, Fulton, Lyne, Vernon, Butler, Elk, Barton, Adair, McPherson and Johnson. These with many others are fine, rich and very productive counties. These lands are worth say from $20 to $75 per acre, as a general thing say from $25 to $40. They are all of black or red soil very productive and adapted to corn, wheat, oats, flax and castor beans, but mostly cultivated by riding plows making from 50 to 70 bushels per acre, and new corn selling at 20 cts. per bushel and it would astonish any one to see the amount of corn they produce. The country is well settled, good churches, good schools, the people moral, religious and social, here we find good water, a little timber but the gliver of every gift has wisely arranged that almost every farmer has upon his own land an inexhaustible supply of good coal. We spent some time with Esq. Joe McCord, Croft, Armstrongs, and others from Christian county, all doing well and well satisfied. They showed us many favors and kind acts whilst there and be assured, my friends, I will ever remember you. We found in that county much good stock, especially hogs and cattle, calves worth $15.00, 2 years old steers $45, feed until May, then these calves worth from $35 to $40 and the steers from $75 to $80. Many interesting things to be seen there especially by one who has been raised upon the hills of Tradeville and Pound river. On our way home we spent two days in St. Louis. Be assured we took in the city.

OBITUARY.

Died on 1st Oct. at her father's residence near Oak Grove, Ky., of a congestive chill, little Mabel, daughter of Henry and Fannie Moore, aged one year and eight months.

The sickle of death fell suddenly in the midst of this family; little did the mother think as she made her beautiful little darling's morning toilet, that ere the noon-tide came, her spirit would have taken its flight to heaven; but "He, who doeth all things well" called her up to that higher sphere, where sweet and hallowed bliss could no more be disturbed by the pains and sorrows incident to earth.

There is something impressively sweet in the death of a child. It is not like the war-worn veteran, who having fought the battle of life goes to receive the crown of victory from the hands of his master; but it is sweet innocence resting on the bosom of the Savior, who died for it and rescued it from all the trials and sorrows that beset our earthly journey, then he the pangs of separation be soothed by the thought that she is now one of that white-robed throng, whose unceasing anthems sing the praise of our blessed Redeemer, in the psalms of endless day.

The Owensboro Campaign, the Republican sheet started some weeks ago has suspended, after having succeeded in increasing the Democratic majority in the District. It hoped to capture by making a split in the Democratic party.

The sovereign people of the United States have spoken out in thunder tones in favor of honesty and against fraud and corruption in public office.

To The Tax-Payers of Christian County.

My term as Sheriff of Christian County ends with this year. I must and will close out my business. Many of you are owing me taxes. These must be paid right away. This means every body. Do not say, "it does not mean me, I am good for my taxes." No man is as good as his money. I have employed a number of deputies, and on the 1st Monday in November, I shall start them out with orders to levy and sell and wind up this unholy business. I shall advertise all land and town lots for sale on the 1st Monday in December. Come in and pay and save costs. I mean what I say. I must wind up. I have neither home nor money, and cannot lay around this town for long years waiting to collect little amounts of tax. I give you fair warning. From rich and poor I must have this money.
